A Busy Year For Electorate

Andover faces a busy election calendar this year.

There will be the usual interest in the local election in March when selectman and school committee races command the attention of the local electorate.

But in the fall, the town will be afforded the opportunity to have its own representative on Beacon Hill for the first time.

One election is already having an effect on the other, as Chairman Roger W. Collins of the selectmen has already announced he will not seek re-election in March, concentrating his efforts on capturing the single Andover representative seat at the state house.

Selectman Milton Greenberg, whose term expires in March, has not indicated as yet, whether he will seek re-election.

There have been reports of other candidates seeking the representative post, but none has yet offered a candidacy, indicating there is sufficient time for decision.

Collins was among a local group who attended hearings at the state house in the spring seeking the single representative district for Andover. The town has been served by three representative districts and four legislators from other communities for the past several years.

Also due to attract considerable local attention in the fall state and congressional elections, will be the re-election bid of Congressman Paul W. Cronin.

Elected to his first term two years ago, it appears that Congressman Cronin will be facing opposition from Lowell Democrat Paul Tsongas for the Fifth District post.

As for the local scene, with the holidays now over, interest in the local elective positions is expected to pick up.

REMINDER. Daylight savings time begins next Sunday. Due to the energy crisis, the nation will arise an hour earlier on Sunday, providing an extra hour of daylight. Here, Lynne Hudson provides a handy reminder to adjust the clocks before retiring Saturday night.

A Year Of Refinement

1974 promises to be a year of "refinement, not expansion," Andover Superintendent of Schools Kenneth R. Seifert predicted this week, "for both financial and curriculum reasons."

Because of the current tightening of the belt to keep the tax rate down - - the School Committee held another budget-trimming session last night - - Seifert indicated it might be difficult to maintain personal services at their current level, much less come through with any kind of building program in '74.

While he said that the schools would try to increase their services and live within the same amount of dollars, he added that realistically, it just might not be possible. He also called on the public to understand the situation -- that without more funds, "the level of personal services cannot continue to increase as it has in the past few years."

"As we develop more flexible programs," Seifert said, "we need more personnel to monitor them." However, he said the school system is now reaching its limits of manpower, and that if they don't get additional personnel, they couldn't give a greater and greater variety of services. There also doesn't appear to be room in the new budget for any such allocation.

By way of "refinement," the projects Seifert envisions for 1974 are greater concentration on non-collegebound students and borderline psychological dropouts, more accurate matching of youngsters' and teachers' needs to the curricula, and additional diploma requirements.

"We do have to focus on those students who don't go on to college," Seifert said, "and we will be beefing up the industrial arts and vocational programs."

He said the educators would also be seriously looking for alternatives to a structured school day.

"Some youngsters just can't take the five-and-a-half hour school day and for us to insist is silly," he went on. He said they'd be looking for some combination of school and work activity that wouldn't take the same form as the present work-study program, but would involve greater use of Vo Tech, part-time jobs, and "trading off of teachers so there would be no additional cost to the community."

"Also in the coming year," Seifert said, "the ideas of adding other diploma requirements to the standard 16 Carnegie credit units, will become realities."

For example, he said, the new requirements would establish that when a pupil graduates he be at a certain level of literacy. Also, above and beyond regular classroom activity, a student should have completed a project, and provided some service back to the community.

"We feel a child at a certain level of competency can handle a project," Seifert went on. "This means he will have to go out on his own and organize a project. It shouldn't cost the school system any money."

Another question the schools will be addressing themselves to, Seifert said, is when is a person ready for formal instruction in reading and math.

"Some people have the idea that all youngsters should learn to read in kindergarten and first grade," he said, "but some children are being put in these programs too soon."

"We're getting in a better position of greater diagnosis of children's needs," he went on. "We will be in a better position in 1974 than in the past to identify the environment a child should be

Suggests Forum To Clear Air

With a school committee election creeping onto the new calendar for March - two seats will be at stake - Andover Superintendent of Schools Kenneth R. Seifert this week asked for community support for a clinic that would nip rumors in the bud and allow the schools to go unhampered by campaigning between now and March.

Seifert said the "rumors, politicking and byplay of citizens" have gotten more and more fierce during his five years in Andover, and added that rumors create "very serious strains on the school system."

He said he had already asked the PTO Council to set up a rumor clinic to serve as a clearing house for the truth when a rumor is generated. "The town just doesn't deserve it," he said of the rumor brand of cam-

Six More Permits Revoked

The Andover Board of Health is continuing its crackdown on improperly installed septic systems.

During the past week, six additional permits were revoked by the board for systems either installed or under construction on Brady Loop.

In addition, town counsel went to court last week and obtained a temporary restraining order against a contractor on two systems. The court order provides an injunction against the sale or occupancy of the home until the system is in conformance with town and state regulations.

The crackdown on improper septic systems began in December, as the health authorities insisted on installations approved by them after submission by contractors.

Main problem involves contractors submitting plans to the health authorities for approval of surface sanitary systems.

After obtaining approval, in some cases, the work performed has not been in conformance with the submitted and approved plans.

Neil McDowell, health agent, has been in charge of checking the systems for proper installation.

In Lawrence Superior Court, Judge Vincent R. Brogna issued a temporary restraining on Dec. 19 against the Boston Woodworking Co. of Arlington, which temporarily prohibited the firm from conveying two lots on Brady Loop.

The order was continued in effect in Suffolk Superior Court last Monday.

The court found that the company had been issued a license to install sewerage disposal systems in May of 1973. Following inspections, the health officer determined the installations improper and the Board of Health revoked the permits on Nov. 12.

In addition to the court order, the local health department has determined that there are six additional improper installations in that area and has thus revoked the permits.

Revocation of the permits prohibits the building inspector from issuing a certificate of occupancy for any structure.

All developers and designers working in the Andover area were notified last June of changes in regulations with regard to septic systems.

They were also notified at that time that the board had found that some installations were inconsistent with plans.

Also contained in the notification was the warning that as of

Veteran Of Town Service Succumbs

Edward P. Hall, 84, retired proprietor of the E.P. Hall General Contracting Co. in Andover, and a veteran of several years of public service in the town, died Tuesday morning at Lawrence General hospital following a short illness.

Active in home building in Andover for many years, Mr. Hall served on several town boards and committees and was elected to the first board of selectmen to serve under the new town manager charter in 1958.

He did not seek re-election at the completion of his first term.

Among his most active municipal activities was work on the zoning board of appeals which he served for 18 years and assisted in setting up some of the zoning regulations still in effect today. In this capacity, he also served for a number of years as a member of the planning board.

His 1958 election to the board of selectmen was his second term on that board, having served un-

Auto Tax Reform Proposal

Auto excise taxes would be reduced under legislation filed

Dec. 19 jointly by Senator William X. Wall of Lawrence and the Massachusetts Division of the American Automobile Association.

"Our bill would make a long overdue reform in the excise tax law for the benefit of motor vehicle owners," said Senator Wall. "It would lower the valuations to make them correspond more nearly to actual market prices of vehicles."

"This tax is unfair to wage earners who must have cars to earn a living. Cars are a necessity today, but in Massachusetts they are taxed as if they were luxuries."

"The percentages in the tax law determine the amount of money a person pays," Senator Wall said. "But those percentages have not been changed for the past 44 years. The excise tax law went into effect back in 1929, so it needs modernization and revision."

Several unfairnesses are obvious. First, the law is not true to what cars are worth. The percentages under the Wall-AAA Proposal are closer to actual market values because they are based upon average depreciation figures.

Second, older cars are valued at too high rates because the valuations on vehicles six years old and older never go below 10 per cent.

According to Richard W. Hoover, Legislative Counsel for Massachusetts Division AAA: "Tax reform should begin with the auto excise tax because it has a history of unfairness."

"The excise tax rate is high. Many assessments are excessive. People are plagued by errors, delays and problems."

"The effect of our bill would be to reduce the auto excise tax," the AAA official said. "It has been increasing at an alarming rate. For example, the total amount assessed in 1942 was $8.3 million. In 1952 it was $30.7 million. By 1962 it was up to $90.6 million. In 1972 the tax amount will be over $170 million." (1972 figure not yet available from state).

The second part of the proposal would define the words "list price" so that all vehicles are taxed alike.

"Key words and phrases are customarily defined in law so there will be no misunderstanding or confusion as to their meaning," Hoover said. "But for some reason the words 'list price' were never defined in the excise tax law. A legal definition is important because list price is the basis for the entire excise tax."

The proposal includes the definition of list price commonly used in the automotive industry: "... the price of the vehicle with all standard equipment but not including Federal, state, or local taxes, and dealer handling charges."

The seats up for election are those of present chairman, Dr. Frank E. Griggs, Jr., and former chairman, William King.

King said this week that he hadn't made his decision to stand for re-election, but planned to give it a lot of thought after the holidays. He said that decision would be forthcoming early this month.

Permits

July 1, any changes in plans for such systems would require re-engineering and resubmission of plans to the board.

In mid-December, 11 violations had been noted by the health agent and permits revoked by the board. Eight of the violators returned to the board with altered plans which were ultimately approved. Another case was also resolved prior to initiating court action on two of the cases.

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin has informed realtors and banks of the action of the health authorities and cautioned them in working toward conveying of property in areas where septic systems are necessary.

Health Agent McDowell has been supported in his efforts by the board which consists of Robert A. Walsh, chairman, Dr. William J. O'Reilly and Dr. Douglas M. Dunbar.

In other municipal activities, Mr. Hall served as a building consultant and on occasion clerk of the works for some town projects. He was the clerk of the works for the Sanborn School on Lovejoy Road.

A member of the United Church in Ballardvale, Hall was a 50-year member of St. Matthews Lodge, A.F. and A.M. He was past president of the Andover Service Club and a member of Andover Grange and the Andover Sportsmans Club.

He has served as trustee of the Cornell Fund and also a trustee of Spring Grove Cemetery.

He is survived by three sons, Russell E., Gordon P. and Ernest N. Hall, all of Ballardvale; a daughter, Evelyn J., wife of Merwyn K. Darby of Ballard-

Funeral services will be Friday at 2 p.m. in the Lundgren funeral home, 18 Elm St., Andover. Burial will be in Spring Grove cemetery.

working in."

On the other hand, Seifert also predicted greater matching of a teacher with the environment in which he feels he does best, such as a structured classroom or working with students in a more independent discipline.

"This means a kind of change from this year," Seifert said, but added that this goal too would be dependent on the number of people he has. "We can't continue to personalize without people."

"Next year we hope to make some decent progress in the secondary schools as we have in the elementary schools," Seifert continued. "The teachers and departments are already getting together and teaming up. This is a very, very positive sign. They're getting to know more about the kids than ever before."

Seifert added that many of his goals will take a great deal of discussion and support from the community. He said, however, that in the past six months, "and looking ahead, for the most part, there has been a greater understanding on the part of the public, of what we're trying to do.

"Many people are realizing that the education of their children is not a simple process." This may be because of the implementation of new projects, he said, and added that he was also getting feedback from the faculty members that they are getting a handle on the new projects.

Seifert cited the Doherty-Shawsheen project as one of the school system's highlights of 1973.

The progress they've made in a relatively short time -- from September to now -- has been phenomenal, Seifert said, and he credited the principals, faculty and parents in those two schools.

"They will be able to take advantage of a really fine program in 1974," he said, "because of their efforts last year. We thought there would be a much longer start-up time."

Pipes Are Repaired

Work on repairing the intake pipe for Andover's water treatment plant has been completed, according to Town Manager J. Maynard Austin.

The repair of the improper pipes was made by skindivers and the work completed prior to the holidays.

Testing of the equipment is expected to get underway soon, moving the long-delayed project closer to going on line.

The project is over a year overdue in completion.

FinCom To Begin Study Of Requests

The Andover Finance Committee will begin a series of meetings on the town budgets tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the print room of Memorial Hall Library.

Scheduled for discussion tonight is a general budget review with special articles presentations planned for the recreation department.

On Tuesday, Jan. 8, there will be subcommittee presentations on general government, staff agencies and veterans affairs will be presented.

FinCom Chairman Frank J. Byrne, has assigned members of his board to various agencies in the town to study their 1974 budget requests, as well as special articles to be presented at town meeting in March.

The FinCom members have been regularly attending School Committee meetings reviewing their budget examinations.

Work On Utilities Underway

Work on the installation of utility lines to the new IGA warehouse in Lowell Junction began on Wednesday.

Peter H. Arakelian and Son, Inc., the contractor began operations there after the town tapped a water main in the vicinity of the Gillette plant which allowed the project to proceed.

The town and IGA negotiated the installation costs of the new water and sewer lines for the multi-million dollar warehouse facility.

Danger Signals

Here are some ways to check your car brakes for safety.

Pedal goes down farther than normal. Even when the pedal is depressed completely it should still be at least one inch from the floor. The brakes' hydraulic fluid may be low. Take the car in immediately for service.

When brake pedal is applied the car pulls to one side. Either a leading wheel cylinder, or anything from grease on a lining to a damaged drum could cause this. Get it serviced.

Brake pedal feels spongy when depressed. Usually a very serious condition, requiring immediate attention. It could mean leaking fluid or air in the hydraulic system. See a qualified serviceman.

By Bill Lafond
As it turned out, the powerful North Andover Knights just kept attacking, and pounded the boards as they inched to a 20 point lead in winning their own first annual Holiday Classic over Central Catholic of Lawrence, 66-46.

It all began on Friday night when the Central Catholic Red Raiders made a great comeback in dissolving of the Haverhill Hillies 48-46, on Kevin Gearins only basket of the game with nine seconds on the clock. Central had a 12-2 spurt late in the fourth quarter to help wipe out an earlier Haverhill 40-29 lead. Mike Solomon and Bob Houston led Central with 14 a piece, while

Andy Breen

Mike Brown added 10. Wayne Boisselle (14) and Mike Costello (12) led the Hillies offense.

In the second game a veteran Newburyport club couldn't keep up with the tough running Knights as the host team won handily 61-37. The surprising Clippers nabbed a 10-9 first quarter lead with the great shooting of 6' guard Mike Kealey, but that didn't last long as the N. A. Knights led by Co-Captain Andy Breen with 26 points, and 15 rebounds staged a 17-3 second quarter spurt for a 26-13 half-time lead.

The Clippers couldn't quite battle back into it as it was 38-19 after three frames and then the red wreckers moved in in the fourth quarter to conceive the win. Dick Licare, outstanding floor general, came up with 7 assists and 8 steals. Sid Peterson shot 3 for 3 from the floor and came up with 8 points for second high scorer. Mike Kealey came up with 16 points to lead Newburyport.

Saturday night marked two undefeated Greater Lawrence teams meeting each other in the finals as Central Catholic met North Andover. The Knights battled Central for two and a half quarters before pounding away 12-4 for a 20 point lead and the win. In the consolation contest it was Haverhill 58-51 over Newburyport.

It was a nip and tuck first quarter with the Knights grabbing a 12-8 lead. The host team added three points to the lead in the second frame for a 29-22 half time bulge. Dick Licare, Andy Breen, and Sid Peterson found the range in the third quarter as the Knights ran to a 49-31 lead, outscoring the Raiders 20-9 in that quarter.

They went through the motions in the fourth frame as the substitutes went in to carry out the victory. The Knights outscored the raiders 25-11 from the floor, but got outscored 24-16 from the line.

Andy Breen, the festival's M.V.P., ended up with 18 points, 15 rebounds. Sidney Peterson came up with 15 points and 10 rebounds as he was elected to the All Star Team, and Dick Licare had 11 points, 13 assists, and 9 steals. He also was elected as an all-star guard. The Knights did all this without the services of their great all around guard, Will Uttley, who is out with a knee injury. Mike Solomon, also elected to the All-Star team came up with 13 points. Tom Driscoll and Bob Houston had 9 each.

The Haverhill Hillies had a better inside game in defeating Newburyport. Wayne Boisselle, 18 points, 13 rebounds and Jim Alord 9 points, 12 caroms, led the attack. Boisselle also was elected to the All Star team from Haverhill, while Mike Kealey with 19 points was named from the Clippers.

Knight Rebounds: Good news has come to the Knights as Uttley may start practicing in two weeks and be ready for play in three weeks.

Here are the results of the Alumni Jamboree Dec. 26. The freshman subs nipped the Booster Club 8th graders 20-17. The Freshman starters outdid the Junior Varsity reserves 17-15. The 1960-68 Alumni outclassed the Junior Varsity starters 31-18. The 1969-73 Alumni battled to a 41-37 win over the N.A.H.S. Faculty, and the varsity romped over the '60-73 Alumni captains 39-18.

By the way the Knights won their 35th straight Cape Ann League win over Newburyport in the Festival. The game with Central Catholic didn't count toward the State Tournament qualification. The Knights are 4-0 in the C.A.L. and 5-0 overall. North Andover will try to continue their surge on Thursday, Jan. 3 at Rockport and our next game is Saturday night, Jan. 5 vs. the Ipswich Tigers at North Andover.

Men's Hoop League Results

In Over 33 Division play, the No-Names defeated the Pick-Ups by a score of 40-25. No-Name scoring was paced by Bernie Schindler with 15 and Barry Fleider with 10. The Pick-Ups got 10 points from their high scoring Vin Conforti.

The other Over 33 Division contest was not played as the Sweepers forfeited to Dana's due to lack of enough players.

Starting off strong, new team entry the Put-On's defeated the Panthers in an exciting triple overtime by a score of 63-62. Leading the Put-On scoring was Alan Kenney and Randy Brown, each with 24 points. Frank Monette was high scorer for the losers with 19.

In the other Under 33 Division game, the Embassy downed the Hornets 68-54. Led by Don Strong with 19 and Paul Twomey with 14, the Embassy coasted to a 37-19 halftime lead. Hornet scoring was paced by Lew Jones with 20 points.

Chicken, Lettuce Make News

While the energy situation gets all the attention, some good food buys go almost unnoticed. Fresh chickens, which reached all-time price highs a few months ago, are now down about 10 cents a pound, with supply ample. This may be the effect of the lifting of price regulations, which kept production down. In a free market, the grower tends to produce to meet demand, and good volume brings adequate profit at reasonable prices.

Iceberg lettuce, fresh from California, is extremely reasonable right now, with at least one chain offering five heads for a dollar, and another selling at 29 cents a head. These prices may reflect lowered demand, or a heavy crop, and possibly mean losses to producers or shippers... but they're worth shopping for in any case.

Fresh carrots and celery abound, with prices low. Native squash still rates Best Buy status.

Cortland, Red and Golden Delicious apples from nearby orchards are in fairly good supply, with prices unchanged. McIntosh may be hard to find.

Disposing of your Christmas tree may be less of a problem this year, though it may require a bit more work. If just chucking it out seems wasteful, consider trimming off the branches for mulch on flower beds, cutting up the trunk for firewood. If that doesn't seem worthwhile, simply using the tree as a bird sanctuary or feeder until spring may have some appeal. Some local groups are using a wood chipper to turn old Christmas trees into spreadable mulch. Of course, the tree will return to the soil by itself... if you let it lie there long enough. Like several years.

Your Christmas poinsettias and other holiday plants will last a long time with a little care. Water them moderately - keep the soil damp, not spongy or wet - about once a week. And if they're near a window, remember to turn them every week or ten days, to keep them growing straight.

Keep Car In Gear

You may not realize it, but running out of gas on the highway is now a great deal more than a nuisance... it can seriously affect your ability to steer your car.

More than 85 per cent of the cars produced in the U.S. are now equipped with power steering. At low speeds, if the engine is not turning over, steering these cars is almost as hard as turning the bront wheels of a covered wagon.

In the old days, when a car started sputtering and showing signs it was running out of gas, the normal thing to do was to shift into neutral and coast.

This is no longer true, because when you take the car out of gear the engine stops driving the power steering unit, and you will be steering manually.

If you are traveling more than 25 miles an hour when the engine quits, keep it in gear and power steering will continue to work. You'll lose power steering at around 25, so before your speed gets that low, steer to the side of the road and up on the shoulder, then use the brake to stop before you have to maneuver the wheel without power steering.

The best way to avoid this situation is to maintain a well-tuned engine and keep plenty of gas in the tank.

The first eight-hour day law was passed by Congress in 1868 but applied only to laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by or on behalf of the United States Government, according to "Important Events in American Labor History, 1778-1971," published by the U.S. Labor Department.

The Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, is administered by the U.S. Department of Labor and sets minimum wage, maximum hours, overtime pay, equal pay and child labor standards.

Farnham, Hillmann Score

By Rick Harrison

Sophomore Mark Farnham and junior Steve Hillmann scored goals for the Andover High hockey team, but this output left the Golden Warriors a half-dozen short of defending champ Billerica which pounded AHS, 8-2, in Merrimack Valley Hockey League play last week.

That was the only MVHL outing for Coach Dick Valle's sextet, but in a non-league clash Andover battled St. John's Prep to a 1-1 standoff.

The results left the Warriors with a 1-4-0 league record and a 1-4-1 overall ledger.

Yesterday AHS sought its second victory of the season against Wilmington, and Saturday at 3 p.m. the locals will tangle with Tewksbury at the Billerica Forum.

Billerica

Billerica, 4-0-1 this time around and undefeated through nine regular-season games spanning a two-year period, just proved too strong for the youthful Warriors.

Coach Roger Richard's Indians led 4-1 after one period, 5-1 after two stanzas, and they added three last period goals.

Bob Miller, a transfer from St. John's Prep where he was a top scorer in the strong North Shore League, pocketed three goals to spark the winners.

Sophomore Brian Russell added a pair of red-lighters, while single tallies went to Mark Jenkins, Al Balboni and Jim Wronski.

Billerica's domination showed in its final 32-7 shooting edge, including 15-2 and 7-1 spreads in the first and third periods.

Off To The Races

Russell started the first-place club off to the races at 4:02 of the first period, taking a behind-the-net feed from Brian Bullock and whipping a 10-footer off goalie Chris Cullinan's pads.

Miller made it 2-0 at 5:08 with a quick rebound into an open right corner of the cage, and 64 seconds later Jenkins pocketed a "snapshot" low to Cullinan's glove side to up the ante to 3-0.

Miller whirled around in the slot to beat Cullinan with a seven-footer at the 9:07 mark, and Billerica was home free.

Hillmann Scores

First-line left wing Steve Hillmann put AHS on the board just 12 seconds before the end of the period, notching his third goal in five games by punching a rebound past Indians' netminder Art Jean.

Farnham, the team's top scorer with seven points, and Jack Tanner collected assists on the lamplighter.

Hat Trick

Miller completed his hat trick at 7:27 of the middle period, taking a pass from freshman linemate Carlton Quinton before depositing a wrist shot just inside the post to Cullinan's glove side.

That was the lone shot to beat Chris in the period, and he came up with nine saves including a pair of beauties against Jenkins.

Farnham's Turn

Goals by Russell and Balboni elevated the Billerica lead to 7-1 at 1:42 of the final period, but right winger Farnham retaliated at 6:20 for Andover's final marker.

Sparky took the puck in the neutral zone at mid-ice, cruised down the right lane and snapped a 15-foot wrister off the post to the far side.

Two minutes later Wronski completed the scoring with a 20-foot backhand that eluded AHS third period goalie Kevin Campbell.

The Summary:

Andover	1-0-1-2
Shots on net:
Billerica	15-10-7-32
Andover	2-4-1-7
Goals:	Miller (3), Russell (2), Hillmann, Farnham, Jenkins, Balboni, Wronski.

yielding right of way to the cars already on the freeway. If you try to force your car into the traffic flow, you could force a driver to hit his brakes and he could receive a severe jolt in the rear from the car following him.

Getting on a freeway safely is your problem, not the problem of drivers already there. If they vary their speed to accommodate you, they could cause a major pileup.

Entrance ramps usually lead to an acceleration lane, and it may be a long one or a short one, or it may branch off into an exit. If traffic is heavy, you must find a gap between cars and time your approach to bring you to that gap as close as possible to the prevailing speed of the other cars.

Elementary School Ski Program

The Andover Recreation Community Schools Department has made arrangements with the Bradford Ski Area for a program of ski lessons for Andover elementary schools. This program will begin January 9, 1974 and will consist of skiing lessons over a period of 4 consecutive weeks. The instructors will conduct these classes for students of eight to ten in each group. After lessons there will be free and informal skiing with full use of the Bradford Ski Area Facilities.

The schools participating in this program are Bancroft on Monday, Doherty on Wednesday, Shawsheen on Friday, South on Thursday, Sanborn on Tuesday and West Elementary on Wednesday. Transportation will be provided by the Trombly Motor Coach Company of Andover. Buses will leave these participating schools at 2:50 p.m. and return to these same areas at 5:45 p.m. Rental of equipment will be available at the Bradford Ski Area.

The Bradford School has one of the areas most modern and up to date ski teaching programs. The School is headed by Ted Sutton of Andover and John Moody of Haverhill, both of whom are certified professional ski instructors of America. The classes will be taught using the new concept of American Technique which enables beginners to advance quickly, much faster than with the old rigid snow plow method.

Registration forms have been distributed in the 3rd through 6th grades of those participating schools. Registration is limited to the first 50 students of each class enrolling. Additional forms are available at the Andover Recreation Community Schools Department office. Friday, January 4, 1974, is the deadline for registration.

The Bradford Ski Area has made snow over the New Year's Holiday weekend, and with the snow storm predicted there should be ample snow for the classes to be held.

If there are any questions concerning this program, contact the Recreation Community Schools Department.

W. Parish Seniors Rolling

The Andover West Parish Senior Church Basketball team coached by Frank Monette is leading the Lawrence Jewish Community Center League with a perfect 5-0 record in the six team league in the eighth grade division.

The team consists of Eric Sullivan, Dave Heidt, Bob Zwicker, Steve Serley, Ed Goodman, Chris Elliott, Tim Sweeney and Mark Paro. The same boys are leading the Andover Church Basketball Senior League Division with a 2-0 record, along with other members of the team Paul MacGowan, Carl Wetterberg, Mark deConstant and Mark Ketzler.

The West Parish team also returned from a weekend tour in New Hampshire splitting 4 games for a 2-2 series. Other members of the team participating on the tour were Scott Bitler, Dave Walsh, Randy Hayman, Mark Davey and Bill Schlott, in the ninth grade competition.

The current West Parish Team record including outside games is 11-4. They have beaten St. Ann's 43-2, St. Mary's of Lawrence 25-17, St. Monica's of Methuen 31-24, Maynard Boys Club 71-18, St. Theresa's 36-16, St. Roberts Andover 40-39, Pinardville Boys club 87-57, Bristol Junior High 56-18, Lawrence J.C.C. 29-10, and St. Augustine (B) Andover.

The four losses were at the hands of Chelmsford 38-36 as a West Parish player missed a layup with 1 second left on the clock that would have tied the game up. They also lost to a very strong St. Malachy's team from Burlington 64-37, Plymouth Junior High, New Hampshire 55-47 and Farmington Junior High New Hampshire 42-34. The team has a 45 percent field goal shooting percentage and close to a 60 percent foul shooting average in the 15 games. Consistent scorers have been Steve Serley 132 points, 12 points per game average for 11 games. Eric Sullivan 113 points, 10 point average. Bob Zwicker 72 points, 9 point average. Paul MacGowan 57 points, 10 point average. Carl Wetterberg 45 points, 7 point average. Dave Heidt 31 points, 5 point average.

In league play they are undefeated with a 7-0 record.

The yard was established in the early 1100's when Henry I of England decided it should be the distance between the point of his nose and the tip of his thumb.

In the middle ages, bestiaries were published that appointed moral and ethical truths to animal behavior. For example, the whale was described as having a breath so sweet that it drew to it fishes which it then engulfed for food. On the basis of this "natural history" the whale was said to represent the devil.

The warriors of Borneo wore armor made of fish scales. No doubt it not only protected them from blows, but warded off their enemies.

Course In Mid-East Affairs

The Division of Continuing Education and Community Services, North Shore Community College, will be presenting a series of eight lectures that will deal with the background of Judaism and Arab Nationalism as the forces that caused a collision in the Mid East area.

The lectures will go into the causes of the Six-Day War of 1967 and the Yom Kippur War of 1973.

The effects that these wars have on the Great Powers, the United States and the Soviet Union, will also be dealt with accordingly. The current effect of the 1973 war and the energy crisis in the world, especially in the United States, will be carefully investigated.

The course is being taught by Professor Nahum Sherf, Chairman of the Social Science Division. He has been associated with the College since its inception in 1965. Professor Sherf was born in Vienna, Austria, lived in Palestine and Israel for 25 years and currently resides in Marblehead. He holds a diploma in Public Administration at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem; he has a Masters of Arts in Near Eastern History/Politics from Brandeis University and is a Ph.D. candidate there. Professor Sherf took part in the Israel Arab war in 1947-48 and Anglo-French-Israeli-Sinai campaign in 1956. He worked as an executive administrator for the Israeli Ministry of Finance and was instructor in advanced education for the Ministry of Labor in Israel.

Hints On Training Your Dog

It's easier than you think to teach your dog to "stay." And it may save his life some day. First, have your dog "sit." Then place your hand a couple of inches in front of his eyes and say, "Stay, Stay!" For some reason, a brief blocking of vision conveys the message quickly to most dogs.

After ordering your dog to "stay," back a few feet away from him, keeping your hand in front of you. He'll most likely try to follow you. Step forward holding your hand toward his face and repeat, "stay." Put him back into the "sit" position each time he moves. Do this five minutes at a time, three times a day.

When he holds this position for as long as 30 seconds, pat him and praise him and tell him what a terrific dog he is. Then reward him with "goodies."

Finally walk with him for a minute or two, then repeat the command, "stay." This time increase the "stay" time slightly. Everytime he leaves the position, patiently try again.

Tons Of Seed For Wildlife

It's hard to believe that Maine residents put out six million pounds of seeds for songbirds in 1972.

Yet, apparently it is true. Indeed, it is the first well-documented fact that supports the need for a new line of wildlife management. For while Maine cannot be considered urban - nor especially affluent, for that matter - the Maine survey gives a hint of general public interest in the new field of urban wildlife biology.

Maine's Department of Inland Fisheries and Game established the extent of the bird seed business in the state. Under the direction of Peter A. Cross, wildlife biologist, the state agency gathered figures on the traffic in wild bird seed mixtures. The tonnages were taken from the inventories of prime wholesale distributors, with cross checks to be certain that through intrastate transactions no ton was reported twice. Such seeds as cracked corn, which many people feed wild birds, were stricken from the accounting since most of it goes to farm operations.

The results indicated that the equivalent of 150 trailer truckloads of wild bird seed mixtures was sold in Maine in 1972. From postcards returned by known feeders of birds, the Department found that the average bird fan tossed 124½ pounds to the birds each winter.

However, Yankees working within the Department recognized that while enthusiasts who answered survey cards might shovel out feed at that rate, the average citizen is a mite more conservative. So their more realistic figures gave a hint that if six million pounds were used, no fewer than 100,000 persons were buying the stuff. The result indicates that 100,000 households are putting out grain for wild birds.

Wildlife biologists recently have become interested in the extent of enthusiasm that urban and suburban dwellers have toward their wildlife neighbors. The amount of money spent on wildlife maintenance in these areas has been considered a more reliable guide than answers to questionnaires searching for emotional responses to wildlife. Unquestionably far more poundage of wild bird seed mixtures is distributed in suburban areas than in either the core cities or farm regions. It would seem true because many families move to suburbs to "be closer to nature." But what actually happens, of course, is an urbanizing of suburban landscapes by the sheer numbers of houses and people that have made the move. To retain the original "nature" values in the landscape, the suburbanite must scatter bird feed to keep birds present. Otherwise, there is insufficient food to keep them alive through the winter in an urbanized environment.

State wildlife agencies gradually have become aware that the same pressure of people that has limited their traditional activities as stimulators of game bird and mammal populations has provided them a new clientele: people who are interested in birds and mammals as neighbors. The state agencies now are turning to what they might well have turned toward a decade or two ago, the study of methods through which wildlife may be retained in the suburban or urban neighborhood.

Whoever said that inflation is when you look at your nest egg and it's chicken feed, certainly knew what he was talking about. The way food prices are skyrocketing, you may need all the nest egg to buy a dozen eggs!

That's why it's good to know that federal, state and local governments, as well as business and consumer-action groups are working hard to keep food prices down. Even farmers are being encouraged to overproduce foods of all kinds, in the knowledge that when there is a greater supply than demand the price of goods usually decreases. The key to high-yield agricultural production is the right kind of fertilizer. W.R. Grace & Co. is one of the largest companies in the agricultural chemical business, manufacturing substantial amounts of nitrogen and phosphate fertilizers.

The Soldering Workshop will provide student with the basic knowledge of soldering tools and materials in addition to instruction in use. The reading of blueprints will also be discussed in class. This course is designed to teach the individual skills necessary to meet normal work requirements in the work area where jobs are frequently available. Registration for these courses will be held during registration for the 1974 program on Jan. 7 and 8.

Industrial Course Set

The Andover Recreation Community Schools Department has included two new industrial classes in their 1974 Winter program. These two classes, Geometric Dimensioning and Tolerancing and Soldering Assembly Workshop, are designed to teach basic skills used in industry on a frequent basis.

The Soldering Assembly Workshop will provide each student with the basic knowledge of soldering tools and materials in addition to instruction in proper use. The reading of blue prints will also be discussed during class. This course is designed to teach the individual seeking industrial employment the basic skills necessary to master the normal work requirements in a work area where jobs are frequently available. The course is constructed to also teach the hobby enthusiast the skills necessary to assemble stereo kits utilizing the proper solder joints. The Soldering and Assembly Workshop, a twelve week course, will be held Monday evenings at the Andover High School from 7 to 9 p.m.

Geometric Dimensioning and Tolerancing will provide a comprehensive study in the proper interpretation of symbols and their application as dictated by Y14.5 used throughout the industrial world. This course is constructed for mechanical engineers, tool designers, draftsmen, methods engineers and machinists. True positioning, form characteristics and datums are areas of emphasis in this course. Vincent Garofalo, a recognized expert in this field, has constructed the course to specifically aid the engineer in clearly expressing the design intent so all who come into contact with the design drawing emerge with a common understanding. Geometric Dimensioning and Tolerancing will be taught on Tuesday evenings at the High School from 7 to 9 p.m.

Registration for these classes will be held during regular registration for the 1974 Winter program on Jan. 7 and 8 from 7 to 9 p.m. at any of the following schools: Sanborn, West Jr. High, East Jr. High or Shawsheen School. For further information, contact the Recreation / Community Schools office.

Sproul To Attend Convention

He is with the Wakefield Item. The annual P&P Week Banquet held Jan. 17 at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel will highlight this year's schedule of events. Eli Cantor, chairman of the Board of Printing Industries of America and former Esquire and Coronet Magazine editor, novelist and scriptwriter, will be the main speaker.

The New England Book Show, sponsored by the Bookbuilders of Boston, will kick off the week's activities on Monday at Pier 4. A group of jurors will select the best of the books on display and then discuss their choices at the annual Book Show dinner that evening.

Executives of the Murray Printing Company will speak to the Sales Association of the Paper Industry that day at a Pier 4 luncheon, while the Boston Litho Club and the Boston chapter of Printing House Craftsmen start a week-long tour of 10 Boston area vocational schools to show their film on printing as a career.

On Tuesday, the Ad Club of Boston will hold a luncheon, and on Wednesday, Printing Industries of New England will sponsor Career Day. Two students from each of 20 schools in Massachusetts will tour selected printing plants and have a chance to observe management operations.

Printing and Publishing Week is held each year throughout the country to observe the importance of the printing and publishing industry.

The Fence

We can understand the reluctance of some Andover officials to submit to regional planning, for fear of losing identity, but the attitude which keeps cropping up when anything of a regional nature is mentioned is about 30 years to late.

The latest of course, was a sort of admonishment of Chairman Roger W. Collins of the selectmen for having attended a meeting sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce for area officials.

The meeting was informal, produced a forum for area officials to meet with state legislators serving the area, and in general, discuss problems being faced by all Greater Lawrence communities.

Selectmen Milton Greenberg and Alan F. French, were particularly concerned about Collins' presence and have asked the matter be placed on the agenda for future discussion and decision as to whether Andover would participate in other similar meetings conducted by the chamber.

The attitude of both Greenberg and French on regional matters is becoming more and more of concern.

At the latest meeting, Greenberg suggested that the area communities metropolitanize and get it over with in a somewhat facetious manner.

This is not the answer to the problems facing the communities.

It should be apparent to all area officials that the only solution to the major financial problems facing them is through a regional approach.

In the years ahead when the financial crunch of operating the municipal corporation becomes even greater, we may see more than solid waste, transportation, river cleanup and general planning, being considered at a regional level.

Already some educational programs are being planned for regional conduct, these in the area of special education.

Vocational education is already on a regional basis.

That fence around Andover has to fall and the leaders must work with neighboring towns and cities to seek better, more economical and lasting solutions to the major problems which have been, to an extent ignored over the years.

The problems of Greater Lawrence are very much a part of Andover's and must be treated as such.

The sooner all concerned community leaders can begin working together in an amicable manner, the better the area will be.

We have little fear of losing identity. More concerned are we that we will be losing valuable time and funds through constant bickering over how and why regional commissions are established and for what reason.

The IRS

The residents of the New England and New York area are aware there is an Andover these days.

The annual income tax forms are well on their way to addresses throughout the six-state New England area and portion of New York, beginning with mailings last week.

While the prospect of the annual dues for running the country is not all that pleasant, the Andover address means much to the town and to the area in general.

The IRS regional center on Lowell street is a valuable asset to the Greater Lawrence community.

It annually provides substantial employment to thousands in the area, in the form of both temporary and permanent jobs.

Many of its employees have become permanent residents of the Andover area.

The regional center is also a place of interest to visitors both from other states and foreign lands, who marvel at the electronic processing of the millions of income tax returns which pour through the building annually.

As we once again reckon with that April 15 deadline, we must also be thankful in a way that the Andover address for IRS is well-known and much appreciated for some of its economic opportunities for the area.

Good News

Despite the world around us and some of the problems facing the area as a new year begins, there are some good things happening.

Random thoughts reveal that the school committee is continuing its scrutiny of the educational costs for 1974 and working toward a reduction in them. Continued effort on their part along with the finance committee and selectmen on the overall town budget could result in some even better news come March.

The local board of health has become strict in enforcement of regulations regarding the installation of septic systems in town, with the result some permits have been revoked. This bodes well for both the town and the prospective new homeowner.

For the town, it means averting problems after the homeowner finds problems in the system. For the new tenant, it means a savings in cost burdens to repair improper installations.

Despite the energy crises, the Community school program is able to resume activities for another term in consolidated quarters. Only the neighborhood concept has been scrapped to conserve on fuel and power, but the various program offerings continue at the request of the general public who establish the courses and recreational opportunities.

With these few notes we sail into 1974 in the hope that the news will be on the upswing as the months advance.

Off The Top Of The Desk

While the winter has been relatively mild and free of snow and dangerous driving conditions, the Sunday papers offered a bright note, just the same.

The annual advertisements for seed catalogues began this week, and it is a bit refreshing about this time of year to think a bit about spring.

We are sure the ski buffs and snow lovers will heartily disagree, but after a darkened Christmas season, a little spring color in the form of the flowers appearing in the catalogues was a bit refreshing.

We wonder how well the energy crisis is being met when motorists go from station to station to secure a tankful of gas.

With many service stations limiting the number of gallons, or dollar amounts being pumped to individual cars, many motorists spend considerable time going from one station to another to either fill or top off their tank.

This doesn't seem to meet the demands of the crises, since it seems a waste of time energy and fuel travelling considerable distance to accomplish the task of obtaining a full tank.

Quick now, name the three Skylab Astronauts who have been in space longer than any other human?

Seems strange how fleeting is fame and attention to such an effort.

If it were not for periodic news reports, we doubt that other than those in charge of the space program would be aware of the current mission.

Taxpayers may be enjoying the absence of snow and ice conditions on the roads so far this winter.

The mounds of salt and sand, ready for combatting winter storm conditions has remained at a sufficiently high level all winter, there being very little cause for its use.

But road officials caution, it takes only one good old-fashioned New England storm to put a healthy dent in the old snow removal budget and there are still several weeks of winter left.

Rivers in and around the area continue to maintain a high level for this time of year.

Both the Merrimack and the Shawsheen seem to be at extraordinary levels for January.

If Andover ever gets its treatment plant in operation, the town and the area can be assured of adequate water supply from all appearances.

The plant is designed to serve the region, particularly North Andover, if necessary. It will treat water from the Merrimack and place it in Haggetts, Andover's main reservoir.

Seems interesting to note how long it takes to solve a problem such as solid waste.

Again in reviewing events of 25 years ago, we find the North Andover selectmen seeking a meeting with Lawrence officials to resolve the dump issue.

Smoke from the Lawrence dump has been a constant source of disturbance for North Andover residents particularly in the Sutton street area. Today, the problem still erupts from time to time, as officials from the Greater Lawrence area attempt to resolve the overall problem.

The Federal Emergency Daylight Saving Time Energy Conservation Act which starts at 2 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 6, 1974, can create additional hazards for motorists unless they follow preventive measures.

The Registry of Motor Vehicles reminds motorists that they will then be driving to work during darkness which is not customary on their morning trip. They are cautioned that the law requires that headlights - - not parking lights - - be used during darkness!

Car lights should be turned on when leaving home and kept on while visibility is poor or until one-half hour before sunrise.

Drivers are also cautioned to drive slower than usual because it will be more difficult to see pedestrians. They should also be

Down the Years with The Townsman

75 Years Ago - January, 1899

George A. Christie has resigned his position as baritone in the Christ Church quartet. His place will be taken by Harry H. Noyes, who will begin his duties on Sunday.

The arc light at the junction of Elm and Summer streets and Maple avenue, which has been out more often than on, has finally been replaced by one which seems to be of sufficient quality.

The Wilbur block on Maple avenue has been sold to J. H. Campion and Henry W. Barnard by J. H. Cardin of Lawrence. They will make additional repairs and connect to the sewer line. Bathrooms will be added and other improvements made.

The kindergarten school at Abbot Village will be held in the afternoons for the remaining winter months rather than conducting morning sessions.

William Odlin, newly elected representative from this district, took the oath of office yesterday on Beacon Hill to begin his new legislative duties.

50 Years Ago - January, 1924

The Punchard High school junior class will present, "Come Out Of The Kitchen," a comedy in town hall Friday night with Miss Frances Farrell and Gardner Shaw in the starring roles.

The School Committee met this week and reports that the budget for the coming year will be higher due to the increasing need for teachers. Also, state funds which are given the town for education do not go to the school department, but to the town treasury.

New Year's Eve parties were well attended in town Monday night, with events at Town Hall, the Shawsheen Manor and Shawsheen Restaurant and also at the Community rooms in Ballardvale.

Rev. Newman Matthews, pastor, greeted the annual meeting of West Parish church this week. Herbert Carter was re-elected clerk, Frank H. Hardy, auditor and Fredric S. Boutwell, treasurer.

Omar P. Chase walked off with most of the ribbons in the Boston Poultry show this week. His Golden Wyandottes were in a class by themselves, capturing all the top honors in that class.

25 Years Ago - January, 1949

John M. Kemper, Phillips Academy Headmaster, in a letter to Fire Chief C. Edward Buchan, commended the department for their prompt response and action in averting damage at a fire in Abbot House, one of the dormitories.

The parking meters installed this past year, have been averaging about $38 per day, according to the latest reports. Collections from 105 of the 195 meters last week totalled $39.66.

The school committee this week voted to accept high school students from Boxford. The North Andover school system, which had been accommodating the Boxford students, can no longer handle the overcrowding problem at the high school. Tuition fees will be $160 for juniors and $180 for seniors.

Due to the large crowds still visiting St. Francis Seminary in West Andover to view the Christmas display, the lights will remain aglow through Sunday night.

10 Years Ago - January, 1964

Walter's Cafe which was burned out of its Post Office Avenue quarters late last year, will reopen on Park Street next week.

Many cases of mumps have been reported to the board of health. Over 40 cases have been recorded during the past two weeks.

Cub Pack Celebrates Holidays

Pack 102 planned their holiday party last week around the customs of other countries. Each den had made tree ornaments typical of their chosen country, and they brought them along to deck the tree. When it was finished it was presented to the Merrimack Neighborhood Project, and Mrs. Hatch and Mrs. Fucca kindly came to receive it and take it back with them.

The cubs entertained each other with songs sung in many tongues and the great moment of the evening was Santa's arrival with a sack slung over his shoulders.

The following awards were made in December.

Community Schools Registration

The Recreation / Community Schools Department will hold special registration nights for their 1974 Winter programs in four Andover schools on Jan. 7 and 8.

Volunteer teams will staff West Jr. High, East Jr. High, Shawsheen and Sanborn schools from 7 to 9 p.m. on both nights.

Registration for all of the Winter Programs will be on a first come, first served basis. Registrations will be accepted in the Recreation / Community Schools office after Jan. 8.

Parent Discussion

The Recreation / Community Schools Department is offering a seminar in parent-child relations entitled Parent Discussion Group. The course will be conducted by Gary and Jane Goldstein who have each had broad training and experience in the field. Mr. Goldstein is a psychiatric social worker and is presently a staff therapist with the Family Service Association of Worcester.

The seminar is aimed at developing more effective means of relating with children and understanding their behavior. Some of the topics to be covered include conversing with children, responsibility and independence, praise and criticism, peer and sibling rivalry, discipline and various other parent concerns.

The course will be offered on Tuesdays from 7:30-9 p.m. at the High School. Enrollment will be limited.

Bookkeeping

Bookkeeping will be offered for the first time this winter. The 10-week course will be held at the West Jr. High on Thursdays from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. This course is an introduction to bookkeeping and will cover the basics in preparing and interpreting bookkeeping journals, ledgers, statements, financial reports and payroll records. Financial recordkeeping for small businesses will also be covered.

Dawn Morissette, a business teacher from Methuen, will be teaching the course.

Interior Decorating

A 10 week course in Interior Decorating will be offered on Wednesdays from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. at East Jr. High. Phyllis McLaughlin, a self-employed interior decorator in Boston will teach the course.

Students will learn the basics of total concept of design. The course will cover areas such as use of color, decorating materials, various furniture periods, textiles and other informative topics. Class participation in open discussion of all concepts is encouraged by Ms. McLaughlin. It is hoped that students will bring various problems and questions to be discussed by the class and answered by Ms. McLaughlin.

TV Workshop

The Andover Recreation / Community Schools Department is sponsoring a television workshop for elementary students in grades 4 through 6. This new program will be located at the West Elementary School Media Center. Mary Cassidy, the school media coordinator, will lead the youngsters through the phases of TV show production. The course is designed to provide the participants the opportunity to script write, produce, direct and act. They will use all the equipment necessary to produce a television show. As many of the Andover public school children have had instruction in the use of the video equipment, this course is constructed more toward a visual production rather than basic equipment instruction. Proper use of the equipment will be strictly enforced. Guests will be invited to the final class for a preview of the show. The television show will then become a part of the catalogued media materials of the Andover Public Schools. This 10 week course is not scheduled to start until March 5, however, registration is still required the week of Jan. 7. The class will be held on Tuesdays from 3:15 to 4:30 p.m.

Stained Glass

A 10-week class in Stained Glass Ornaments will be in the Winter 1974 program on Tuesdays from 7-9:30 p.m. at the Andover High School. This is an increasingly popular craft which many people have found to be an excellent way to create gifts and attractive items. Some of the various items that can be made include window medallions, candle holders, sconces, terrariums, jewelry boxes and lanterns. Theresa Hale, who has taught this course in both Wakefield and Stoneham, feels that this is a highly expressive art and is looking forward to teaching the course here.

Upholstering

In response to numerous requests, upholstery will be offered in the January program. Ned Messina, who restores furniture and antique car upholstery in Lawrence, will teach the class from 7-10 p.m. on Wednesdays at East Jr. High. The course will cover the fundamentals of upholstery small items as well as the breakdown and restoration involved in re-upholstering sturdy old pieces of furniture. Mr. Messina will teach students how to do spring tying, how to reinforce chair coverings with wadding and how to put on new outside coverings. Learning this skill can save a considerable amount of money for those who have worn-out pieces of furniture that need re-upholstering. All students will be required to purchase small tools, pay for wadding and buy their own upholstery material. The total cost of this will vary depending on the kind and amount of materials used.

Aqueous Media

The department is offering a new class called Aqueous Media. David Sullivan will teach this course in which the techniques of color and pastels will be explored. Egg tempera will be introduced and a study made of its application to mixed techniques.

The 10 week course in Aqueous Media will be given on Thursdays from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at West Jr. High School.

Mr. Sullivan will again be conducting his Workshop, which is geared for the more experienced painter in oils. This will be held on Tuesdays from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at the West Jr. High School. Life Drawing, also taught by David Sullivan will be offered by the Department on Wednesdays from 7:30 - 9:30. This class will be held at Mr. Sullivan's studio.

Doll Craft

A course in Doll Craft will be given and this course is designed for all ages, including sixth grade through Senior Citizen. This is a particularly good opportunity for mothers and daughters to participate in a class together. Marilyn Pratt, who previously taught a class in Historical Doll Dressmaking will teach Doll Craft.

Mrs. Pratt will provide instruction and guidance in creating fabric and knit costumes for every kind of doll. Individuals may also make their own heirloom apple doll, cloth dolls and puppets.

Doll Craft will be held on Wednesdays from 7 - 9 p.m. at the East Jr. High School.

French For Kids

A new course for 4th - 6th graders will be offered in Conversational French. The course is designed to introduce elementary age children to the exciting world of foreign language. Roger Thurber, an Andover Jr. High School teacher will conduct the class. Continual conversation in French will be the main method by which the students will learn the language while they will also discover that learning a language can be fun. Filmstrips will provide stimulating insights into the language and the French culture.

Conversational French for Kids will be offered on Tuesdays from 3:15-4:15 p.m. at the Doherty Elementary School. The course will run for 10 weeks.

Folk Dancing

Folk Dancing will be held Tuesdays from 7-9 p.m. at the West Jr. High School. Dorothy Christopher, whose enthusiasm made last winter's class a success, will be instructing the class again.

Folk dancing is an invigorating and enjoyable activity for people of all ages, and everyone 16 years or older is invited to participate. The class is more fun when there are numerous participants - come out and learn the various ethnic folk dances you have watched others doing for years.

Writing

The ability to communicate our ideas in both professional and private life is of paramount importance. The Recreation / Community Schools Department is offering a writing course through their Winter Program that will cover basic expository writing technique, descriptive, dialogue, narrative and point of view. Versatility of style, reports, inter-office memos and other formal writing will be included.

The course will be taught by William Becker who is head of the English Department at Andover High School. Classes will be held on Monday and Thursday evenings at West Jr. High from 7:30 - 9 p.m.

Conditioning

The Recreation / Community Schools Department is offering a Physical Conditioning Class for Men this winter. This program is geared for the man whose daily routine does not provide the opportunity to keep his "body in mind." Steven D'Urso will instruct the course which will be held on Mondays from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at the high school. Mr. D'Urso plans to cater to individual conditioning needs. Activities will center around a regimented exercise routine which will include the kinds of exercise that can be continued outside the class.

Two New Activities Scheduled

The Recreation / Community Schools Department is offering Women's Gymnastics and Judo for Adults as part of the new 1974 Winter program. These two classes are the result of many requests from the community and will therefore be offered in the evening program to be held in the Andover Public Schools.

Women's Gymnastics is offered to provide both the opportunity to exercise and to learn basic moves on the various pieces of gymnastic equipment. This program will meet at the Andover High School Gymnasium on Thursday evenings from 8:15 to 9:45 p.m. Through basic instruction, this ten week program will familiarize each person with the gymnastic equipment. Exercise will play a large part in the program as proper warm-up and conditioning are necessary for safe use of the gymnastic apparatus.

Judo for Adults is offered to provide a basic knowledge of protective skills and is excellent for physical conditioning. This ten week course is offered to both men and women over the age of 16. Judo for Adults will be held Thursday evenings at the West Elementary School from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Judo, known as the gentle art, teaches skills stressing maximum efficiency through minimum effort.

Registration for both of these classes will be held as part of the Recreation / Community Schools Department's regular registration on Jan. 7 and 8 at 7 p.m. in the Sanborn, West Jr. High, East Jr. High and Shawsheen schools. For further information, contact the Recreation / Community Schools office.

New First Aid Course

The Andover Recreation / Community School Department, in cooperation with the local chapter of the American Red Cross, is sponsoring a Standard First Aid and Personal Safety Course. This is the newly organized 14-hour instructional course providing each participant with the basic skills necessary to effectively manage accidents that occur. Emphasis will be made upon the personal safety precautions an individual may take to prevent accidents. Two Andover Red Cross volunteers, Heather Buchan and S. Marcus Sweet, will teach this new seven week course scheduled to start Feb. 5. Classes will meet twice each week, Mondays and Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday's classes will be held at the High School and Thursday's classes at West Jr. High School.

Registration for the Standard First Aid and Personal Safety Course will be Jan. 7 and 8 from 7 to 9 p.m. in any of the following schools: Sanborn, West Jr. High, East Jr. High and Shawsheen School. For further information call the Recreation / Community Schools office.

Computer Car Pool Of Value

An inexpensive and efficient computer car pool program has been developed by the Bureau of the Census to ease the energy crunch. Under Secretary of Commerce John K. Tabor announced today.

Under Secretary Tabor said that the Census Bureau will ship a tape to any business, government agency or consortium desiring to establish a car pool. All a local company or municipal government need do is collect the applications from drivers and riders and feed them into the computer. The Census "CARPOL" tape will match the people up.

"We think this is the fastest, cheapest, and most efficient car pool system now available," Tabor said. "Part of its economy is that it takes advantage of a heavy investment already made by Federal and local governments in automated geographic data files."

The CARPOL system has already been tested in Los Angeles, where employees of the Los Angeles County government have the program under way, and CARPOL programs are now being developed for Baltimore city employees, for a consortium of business and government employees in the San Francisco-Oakland metropolitan area, and for Census Bureau employees.

The system can be in full operation in less than two months after receipt of the tapes. A single reel of tape can be purchased for $70 from the Users' Service Staff, Data Users Office, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233. Documentation can be bought separately for $3.

Toys - Yesterday And Today

For centuries, the types of toys children favored frequently reflected the sort of adults they would become.

In warlike ancient Sparta, boys were only allowed to play at war games, and even the girls were toughened up in physical fitness programs. The youngsters of old Rome played at toy chariot races and fought with fake swords. The offspring of Renaissance men had miniature ocean galleons and crossbows. When England was empire building, British boys were brought up to be amused by toy soldiers.

The world of toys has always been a model of the world of grown-ups, according to child psychologist Dr. Ann Margaret. It provides an opportunity for the child to explore and learn, in the security of the game, what he will be when he grows up. Today's parents want their tots' toys to teach them to be well-adjusted human beings, able to deal with the modern world. And so, as America becomes less concerned with gun-toting frontier traditions, and more wary and weary of war and violence, the toys that young people play with are also changing.

The militaristic soldier doll is being replaced by a strong anti-violent and sturdy outdoor hero type of toy for all action-oriented girls and boys. One member of this new breed of he-man figures is manly, muscled and movable. He can even flex his biceps to pop a muscle band. He has many different sports and adventure outfits and accessories, camping equipment, even a wood-chopping set, so children can act out all sorts of exciting fantasies.

They are the kind of miniature mighty men a child likes to idealize and identify with. As Dr. Neal Cameron, an American psychologist, pointed out: "Children's play is children's work, and much of it closely resembles social roles that adults live. A child's role-taking games are unplanned introductions to adult life."

Toys today can perhaps help a parent provide the proper environment for bringing up their boys and girls to face tomorrow.

Ice Storms Raise Havoc With Trees

Ice storms can split and shatter trees, leaving much destruction and havoc as was seen in the recent storm.

It happens most every winter, usually in localized areas says Mr. R. A. Bartlett. Ice storms start with a windstill drizzle when the temperature hovers a point or two below freezing. Ice piles on ice. Suddenly, branches which have been known to withstand 23 times their own weight come crunching, crashing down. Crotches split. Twigs rain down from tree tops. In some cases, weighted down with ice, the entire tree topples to the ground.

Serious and hazardous conditions can result when electric power fails from broken limbs which bring down utility lines. After major clean-up has been done, tree owners should begin repairing their fractured trees at once.

Hangers and broken branches should be removed, making cuts flush to the main trunk. Torn bark should be traced to promote healing. The tree should be pruned to restore its natural symmetry. Weak limbs and crotches that remain should be cabled and braced.

Latin root capere, which means "to take."

It all harks back to pre-electrical days, when people would take hold of cable mainly to haul things. Today, cable has many other uses, among them the transmission of telephone communications. And, when Western Electric makes telephone exchange cable, it takes pains to produce the best product possible so that Bell Telephone companies buying the cable will never feel "taken."

Taking pains means making stringent tests for conductivity so that, for example, when a Bell System company gets a reel of 1500-paired-wire cable, WE in fact provides 1502 pairs which work perfectly. That's a 100.13 percent performance. This is so because WE craftsmen make, test and repair the wires in the course of manufacture and actually add some extra pairs of wire to keep the cable up to standard.

The first test for conductivity takes place after two thin wires are intertwined to form a pair. The next test is made after 25, 50 or 100 pairs are wrapped around each other to form a single unit. Then the units are wrapped around each other to form cable of a specific size, in this case, 1500-pair. (WE also makes cable in other sizes to meet Bell Telephone company needs.) As the units go through a wrap session to form the final cable (which, after all, will be used to help people communicate), extra pairs of wires are wrapped around the outside of the cable. Then a third test takes place.

After each of these tests, defects are corrected. Then, with the cable at its final size, aluminum and steel sheathings are added and the cable is coated with a waterproof polyethylene jacket and wrapped around a reel. Next comes the fourth and final test.

After three tests, the chances of passing a fourth are pretty high. But, with all the twisting and turning required in cable manufacture, Western Electric takes no chances.

The fourth test gives WE craftsmen an opportunity to correct whatever defects may have occurred when the sheathings and waterproof coating were added. And the results of the test are important because the defect rate is used to determine how many extra pairs of wire will be added to cable manufactured subsequently.

So, when a Bell Telephone company buys a reel of 1500-pair cable from WE to connect telephone central offices and major telephone users, it knows that at least 1502 pairs will function perfectly. On the surface, "cable" may not seem a "captivating" subject. But maybe their common Latin derivation is what makes Western Electric determined to make cable that's got what it takes.

Coffee Facts

Although the average American drinks an estimated 2.3 cups of coffee per day, and about 91 per cent of all indoor workers have coffee available to them on the job, few people have any idea of the history of coffee, oddities about it, and the best way to brew this delicious drink.

The Near East was the original home of the coffee shrub. By the 15th century, pilgrims to Mecca drank a brew of roasted coffee beans to prevent drowsiness during the long religious services of the Mohammedan faith.

The first coffeehouse in London was established in 1652. Within 20 years, such places had become so important a part of the social and political life of the day that Charles II attempted to repress them on the ground that they were "seminaries of sedition."

In Paris, too, many coffeehouses were set up. How important they became is shown by the fact that one of our common names for a restaurant (cafe) is the French word for "coffee" or "coffeehouse."

Until the end of the 17th century all the coffee of commerce came from Arabia, being shipped from Mocha, once the capital of the province of Yemen. Thus we get the name Mocha, which is still applied to all Arabian coffee as well as coffee resembling it in color and taste.

The vast plantations of Brazil and the West Indies, which today grow nearly three-fourths of the world's coffee, are said to be the offspring of a single coffee tree.

Limited Editions Collector's Items

If you had bought a porcelain American eagle by Boehm in 1957 for $150, you could sell it today, only 16 years later, for $18,000.

Such phenomenal profit on this lovely sculpture is realized because the bird was brought out in an edition of only 64 pieces and then the mold was broken. So much is mass produced today that rare objects are prized, and a collector's fancy is snatched up quickly when a small number is offered at a reasonable price.

Another example would be a series of crystal plates issued yearly by Lalique. Begun in 1965 with 2,000 at $25 a piece, resale value of this edition is now around $2,000. The 1970 edition has already resold for $75 per plate.

Limited editions may be "limited" by several factors; the relatively small amount produced, signed, dated and often numbered so you know which in line yours is. Or it can be seasonal, the dated object sold only during a certain season, Christmas, for instance. Or it can run in a series.

Besides sculptures and plates other items now produced for collectors and investors are mugs, paperweights, medals, coins, commemorative objects, and novel bottles.

At a price extreme is Royal Worcester's series of bone china equestrians. This year Princess Anne on Doublet joins the previous editions of Napoleon and the Duke of Wellington. The model is produced in an edition of only 750, and costs $4,250.

Limoges made a beautiful porcelain reproduction of the famed Unicorn Tapestries to sell at $35. The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York produced a dated silver snowflake in a different shape each year, lovely to hang on the tree or around the neck. They also offer a limited reproduction of an early yellow flip vase. Royal Worcester had dated porcelain holiday mugs in two sizes, and Hammacher Schlemmer have offered a limited, signed, dated and hand-painted line of enameled cookware whose initial prices keep most people from ever cooking in them.

Some of these items can be found in specialty or fine department stores around the country, others must be ordered by mail.

Snowmo and Wild

By Polly Bra

Residents of the most remote section of England used to look forward to winter, when all the snow had gone home. They were peaceful and warm.

Now there's no peace. The wild roar of the snowmobiles.

There are over 2,000 snowmobiles in North America, three-fourths of which are in the United States, according to a report "The Off-Road Vehicle and Environmental Quality" by Malcolm F. Baldwin Stoddard, Jr.

There's a live-and-let-live attitude out in the country when snowmobiles first appeared. People were mostly giving them the benefit of the doubt. They'd wait and see.

They waited and saw more and more annoyance and more regulation necessary. Unfortunately, it's difficult to enforce the regulations on millions of acres of settled land.

People can at least pass local by-laws, regulations, and call them when they are harassed.

The wildlife can't. A Bureau of Land Management study showed that a snowmobile disturbed within half a mile of the elk try to move far. Deer also are frightened. Snowmobiles come in.

Snowmobiles and Wildlife

By Polly Bradley

Residents of the more beautiful and remote sections of New England used to look forward to winter, when all the summer people had gone home and things were peaceful and wild again.

Now there's no peace - - just the wild roar of the snowmobiles.

There are over 2,000,000 snowmobiles in North America now, three-fourths of which are in the United States, according to the Conservation Foundation's report "The Off-Road Vehicle and Environmental Quality," by Malcolm F. Baldwin and Dan H. Stoddard, Jr.

There's a live-and-let-live attitude out in the country, and when snowmobiles first came out people were mostly willing to give them the benefit of the doubt. They'd wait and see.

They waited and saw - - and got more and more annoyed. So more and more regulation became necessary. Unfortunately, it's difficult to enforce the laws over millions of acres of sparsely-settled land.

People can at least protest, pass local by-laws and regulations, and call the police when they are harassed.

The wildlife can't do this.

A Bureau of Land Management study showed that elk are disturbed when snowmobiles come within half a mile of them and the elk try to move farther away. Deer also are frightened when snowmobiles come in the vicinity, but do not move away as fast or as far.

The smaller animals, such as voles, shrews, field mice, and ground squirrels, that depend upon snow cover to keep them warm and to keep predators away are killed by even moderate snowmobile travel over their home area. The Conservation Foundation report tells of a study done in the winter of 1970-71 which showed the mortality rate within packed areas to be 100 per cent. "The extreme mortality was attributed to a variety of effects: destruction of subnivean (under the snow) air space, reduction of snow depth, increased density, thermal conductivity, thermal diffusion, sheer strength of the snow, and possibly toxic increase in sub-snow carbon dioxide."

Predators may also be seriously affected by the loss of a major part of their diet. This indirect impact has not yet been fully assessed. It is clear, however, that there has been an increased kill of endangered predator species wherever a bounty exists and snowmobiles make access to remote areas easy. Timber wolves, mountain lions, foxes and coyotes are being seriously threatened.

Then there's the problem of snowmobiles chasing animals just to see if they can catch up with them. Although wildlife harassment is illegal in most states and avoided by responsible snowmobile owners, it remains a problem. Sometimes harassment isn't even intended - - the operator may just want to take pictures - - but the wildlife is just as frightened whether the snowmobile operator really intends to run them down or is just acting as if he intended to.

And, as anyone who enjoys the peace and quiet of a winter countryside can tell you, you don't have to see a snowmobile at all to be harassed by the noise. In this case, hearing is believing.

that some change in New England broke the barrier that seemed to keep these brilliant red birds south and west of our region. After all, the birds filled most of the area east of the Great Plains while boycotting New England. The climate here was no harsher than in southern Ontario, Michigan, Minnesota or Wisconsin. Cardinals singing in a bare tree against a snowscape is a familiar Christmas card theme - and a scene that occurred throughout the birds' northern range.

The clue that the post-World War II exodus of humans from cities to suburbs - and the essential urbanization of suburbs that followed - may have lured the cardinals into the area comes from urban wildlife studies. At a recent conference on urban wildlife held in Springfield, urban wildlife specialists from all parts of the East gave reports. Practically all those dealing with trends among bird species' success in small towns that were becoming cities showed the cardinals increasing.

While there were no definitive studies that showed exactly why cardinals should benefit from an urbanizing environment, there were suggestions. Among other things, cardinals prefer shrubby areas for breeding, and burgeoning suburbs usually have plenty of shrubs as decorations. Cardinals also love small fruit and suburban landscapes contain many ornamental trees that produce small fruit. In addition, suburbanites put out sunflower seeds, which cardinals thrive on.

By 1930, cardinals had invaded New York State. Sometime around World War II, cardinals became increasingly common in Connecticut. In 1957, cardinals entered Massachusetts in substantial numbers, moving up the Connecticut River valley and spilling out over the commonwealth. By 1962, cardinals were entering southern counties of Vermont and New Hampshire.

Although their numbers have vacillated, cardinals now seem well established in all states except Maine where an annual census never has exceeded 16 birds and in recent years has remained around one or two birds.

Perhaps an indication that cardinals prefer just so much urbanization, but not too much, may be illustrated by their success in Vermont and Rhode Island. In the 1973 census, made on the weekend closest to Lincoln's Birthday, Vermont reported 784 cardinals compared to Rhode Island's 133.

Until 1900 when laws ended the custom the cardinal was a favorite cagebird in America. In the period between 1835 and 1900 cardinals occasionally were reported in Massachusetts. At the time, ornithologists assumed that a cardinal in the state was an escaped cagebird. But it is possible that in the period when Massachusetts was transforming from open countryside to woodlands there was a period in which the landscape was favorable for a few cardinals.

Congressman Paul W. Cronin announced today he had introduced the Community Mental Health Centers Expansion Act which would provide funds for grants for public and nonprofit community mental health centers. The grants require specialized services for children and the elderly and may also include alcoholism and drug abuse programs as well as consultation and education services.

"Our present mental health facilities are inadequate to provide comprehensive care to meet the mental health needs of our citizens," Cronin said. "I believe community mental health centers have proven their effectiveness in providing these services, and the Federal government should provide funds to expand the concept to insure adequate facilities and services for everyone."

Cronin added, "Several groups in the district who are combating these problems have relayed the frustrations they face due to limited funds and facilities. If this bill were to pass, it is my belief that many of these frustrations would be turned into salvaged lives."

Completes Intern Course

Greater Lawrence's first Professional Congressional Intern, William F. McDonough, III, of Methuen, has just completed a three-week internship in the Washington office of Congressman Paul W. Cronin.

McDonough, who is Vice President and Services Manager of Standard Coat, Apron & Towel Company of Lawrence, is one of two people from the Lawrence area selected for the program sponsored jointly by the Lowell and Lawrence Chambers of Commerce and the office of Congressman Cronin.

The Professional Intern Program, begun last September, is designed to acquaint young professional men and women from the Merrimack Valley with the activities and operation of a Congressional office. Interns are expected to report on their service to the community as a means to increase public understanding of Congress and the Federal government.

McDonough, age 25, lives at 5 Crest Drive, Methuen. He is a 1966 graduate of Central Catholic High School in Lawrence and a 1970 graduate of Tufts University.

A Review By William Jerome

With the increase in college tuitions let me give you some good news. Tait offers you a full academic year for less than ten dollars.

You can stroll the quadrangle, live it up at the "Sweet Shoppe" with your date, root your heart out at the stadium and ready yourself for the Prom at the Boat House.

By enrolling now at the Colonial Theatre in Boston you become a "Viking." You'll sing and dance and cavort with 32 wonderful college pals. The prettiest Co-eds this side of Vassar and the most dashing and stylish college boys this side of Skidmore.

Your repertoire includes seventeen songs -- with almost as many dances. Such favorites as "Happy Days," "The Best Things in Life Are Free," "Butt Up Your Overcoat," "You're the Cream in my Coffee," "Varsity Drag," "Keep Your Sunny Side Up" and the title song, "Good News."

Harry Rigby believes in this nostalgia bit. College back in the "thirties." Carefree and cute. You sit back and relax for two and a half hours. Rigby has a way of re-threading the time spool. As a Producer he has already given us revivals of "No No Nanette" and "Irene."

This is a brand new package. December 17 was the opening. The play remains four weeks then begins its seven month tour of the U.S., Philadelphia, Detroit, (Toronto, of course,) Los Angeles, San Francisco, assorted cities across the continent and possibly back to Boston and then on to New York City.

By that time half the country should be toe tapping, warbling the happy, catchy old tunes, wearing belt-backed coats, porkpie hats, wild plaids and marvelous shawl, wool cardigans. And with pipes of course.

The gals will have their long pleated skirts, smart sweater sets, cloche hats and Prom gowns.

Mr. Abe Burrows, is the Chancellor, so to speak. He adapted and directed this original by Lawrence Schwab, B.G. De Sylva and Frank Mandel. Every nuance is perfect. No trouble-talk. Funny sequences and repetition amongst the Co-Eds. Slap! "I needed that" or "You're stepping on my toes."

The plot is simple. You all get "A" without any research. Tait must lick Colton on the Grid-iron Saturday. But, Woe! Star Tom Marlowe (Scott Stevensen) is ineligible. He has flunked Astronomy. An appeal is made and Connie (Marti Rolph) Tom's girl-friend arranges to have her "plain" cousin Pat (Jana Robbins) tutor Tom.

The appeal to Professor Charlotte Kenyon (Alice Faye) is listened to with sides of good advice and encouragement and compliments. You guessed it. Tom passes the re-make and is all set to play -- to win. But scheming Connie, devastates our "hero" at the Sweet Shoppe by publicly announcing she will marry him in the wake of Saturday's victory over Colton. Now this is "bad news" for Tom. Along with his success in Astronomy he's discovered a new star -- Pat. He loves her. She loves him. Yet Connie holds a letter -- a promise from Tom to marry her. Wow-zee. What a plot. As you move forward to the edge of your seat with all this excitement you learn many things. The Professor (Alice Faye) and the Coach (John Payne) were once Co-eds at Tait. And we dare to presume sweethearts. But Bill Johnson's passion for football overcame his desire for domesticity leaving Charlotte Kenyon an old maid. Our Professor turns a trick or two and we find her singing I Want to be Bad."

We find the Coach moaning his half-time blues. He rags the players. Leave to to Trainer Pooch Kearney (Stubby Kaye) to rouse the team with a song and routine.

Meanwhile there is a funny "Frosh" who butts in, ogles upper classmen, walks a funny dog and strives to become "water-boy." For romantic diversity, there is the darling, aggressive "Babe O'Day." She wants to give her boy friend back to the "Indians." He is six feet eight and all beef -- that's his name "Beef Saunders" (Joseph Burke). He chases her in scene and out. She chases her newly chosen pal, "Bobby Randall" (Wayne Bryan, he's five feet seven). And there is much to do.

The play is a clergyman's dream. No one is after anything they shouldn't be, no one loses anything they shouldn't. The college patter is palatable. Cast is handsome, agreeable and talented. The young stars are mothered so to speak by the elder ones, Alice Faye, John Payne and Stubby Kaye.

It's really a place you'd like to visit and maybe live. Tait College. Enroll now, at the Colonial Theatre -- be a "Viking."

Radarange
MICROWAVE OVEN

Make the greatest cooking discovery since fire:

Amana Radarange Now On Display At Dalrymple Oil

Make the greatest cooking discovery since fire! It's the revolutionary Radarange microwave oven made only by Amana, now on display at Dalrymple Oil Company, 244 Broadway in Lawrence. With it, you can cook most of your meals in one-quarter of the time they require by conventional cooking methods.

Think of the convenience this Amana Radarange offers you. Put your food in, set the Timer Control, push the Start switch, and you're cooking electronically. It shuts itself off automatically when time is up. You prepare foods the way you do now, but you cook most everything in one-quarter of the time. For example, you can bake a ham in 25 minutes, a turkey in 7 minutes per lb., a hamburger in 60 seconds.

It's fully automatic and it cooks cool; the oven never heats up. And you will never have to wash and scour pots and pans because you simply never use them to cook in the Amana Radarange oven. You can cook on almost anything that is not metal. Cook on individual tableware, or for the ultimate in convenience, on disposable paper plates.

Stop in at Dalrymple Oil Company and see it on display. There are three styles, one to suit your family. You can build them in, put them on a countertop, or move them from place to place on a cart. Another first from Amana is that the Radarange has a 5 year Warranty; it includes free parts for 5 years, and free related labor for 5 years.

Dalrymple Oil Company is one of the largest suppliers of home heating oils, industrial oils, and heating and air conditioning equipment in the area. For a free home heating and ventilating survey, call them at 683-2455, or stop in any time. Open Tues. and Fri. evenings.

TYPICAL SCENE. Long lines of cars awaiting gasoline was the order of the day on Monday as motorists filled their tanks in anticipation of holiday shutdowns and threatened further curtailment of fuel allotments. The scene is expected to become fairly regular as the energy crises forces motorists to keep a wary eye on their tanks and the availability of fuel.

Off The Top

on the lookout for children on their way to school who may be wearing dark clothing and are not easily visible.

After the holidays use the discarded Christmas tree as winter protection for shrubs and garden plants.

R.A. Bartlett suggests first cutting off the boughs. Small branches can be placed, curved ends up, around plantings or over garden beds when the ground is more or less exposed. This will prevent plants from frost heaving. An evergreen mulch cuts down on thermal fluctuation.

Larger boughs can be fashioned into open lean-tos over azaleas, laurel, cotoneaster or other tender shrubs. This shields against sun scald and winter burn.

Some home owners gather Christmas trees discarded by neighbors and use them as protective shelter around rhododendron and large boxwood. The trees are anchored so that they will not blow away or fall down to crush the plantings. Moreover, they make shelter for winter birds.

Still another use for the tree after Christmas is as a backyard bird feeder. A fir is ideal since it retains its needles all winter outdoors. The tree should be well anchored, preferably in a hole. Then tie pieces of suet, popcorn, apple, peanut butter or other morsels of food to the outer branches. Always keep a container of water handy.

Skylab has landed at Boston's

Museum of Science.

At least, a one-fifth scale model of the orbiting space station has arrived at the Museum, and is now suspended in the Great Well of the Museum's west wing.

A home away from home for the astronauts, Skylab orbits the earth at an angle of 50 degrees to the equator, at an altitude of 270 miles. From this vantage point, it can observe all sections of the United States. And from the vantage point afforded Museum visitors, they may observe all sections of the model space station.

The Skylab program has three main purposes: to monitor the sun's activities with the Apollo Telescope Mount; to conduct medical investigation on the impact on man of longterm space travel; and to evaluate the earth's resources and environment.

The Skylab model, complete except for the Command and Service Module, was built for the Museum by Engineering Dynamics Corporation of Westford. The background material and design were prepared by members of the Museum staff.

Unlicensed Dogs Face Court Action

Animal Control Officer Donald Porter has received orders from Police Chief David L. Nicoll to start court action against owners of dogs who have failed to license their dogs.

Chapter 140, Section 137 of the General Laws requires that all persons who are owners or keepers of dogs three months old or over must license them at the office of the Town Clerk.

According to Officer Porter these owners of unlicensed dogs have received sufficient notice to comply with the law, and have failed to do so. This applies to dog licenses dated 1973.
